Halloween is celebrated on 31st October every year. It has its origins in the ancient Irish and Scottish Samhain festival - the festival of the dead. The Celts believed that on this day, the dead came back to mix with the living. They dressed up in spooky costumes and lit bonfires to scare away evil spirits. Centuries later, the Catholic Church named 1st November as All Saints Day to honour those who had gone to heaven. Today, some traditions from its early beginnings still remain, such as dressing up in scary costumes.
